U.S. stocks rose modestly at the start of trading on Friday, recovering from early losses as investors bought into the holiday shopping-spree optimism that has boosted the market for four straight weeks. The S&P 500 index (^GPSC) rose 0.2% to start the week, continuing its recent comeback from the bear market that ended at the start of October. The Dow Jones Industrial Average (^DJI) rose 37.11 points, or 0.14%, to 18339.14, while the Nasdaq Composite (^IXIC) gained 10.44 points, or 0.15%, to 5428.85. The S&P 500 climbed 0.2% to 2272.70, but the index remains 26.8% below its all-time high. Trading was positive for the afternoon as investors continued to digest the impact of strong retail sales. Retail sales for November rose 1.0% in December, according to the Commerce Department, which exceeded Wall Street's expectations. Most retailers reported strong sales ahead of the long Thanksgiving holiday, which kicks off a four-week shopping spree that starts on Black Friday, the Friday after Thanksgiving. "We have more optimism that the year is not over," said Bruce Bittles, chief investment strategist at d4474df7b8
