Q: How to create a command with systemd I'm working on a script to update a Linux Server. I have to update the packages (Ubuntu 14.04), but every time i run sudo apt-get upgrade, it ask me for my password, which make my script stuck. I need to get around this by creating a systemd service that does the same, so i don't have to run sudo apt-get upgrade. So how can i create a systemd service to launch the command update?
For example this is the old sudo apt-get upgrade command: # sudo apt-get upgrade [sudo] password for user: Reading package lists... Done
