I'm using redirect_to to redirect. But the target page is exactly the same - the index, which is the first page. Why does redirect_to show this error? Bad route pattern

'index': invalid literal for int() with base 10: 'index' Here is the code: if request.method == 'POST': if form.validate_on_submit(): data = request.form l.send_email(data['email'], data['name'], data['message']) url = 'index' return redirect(url) return render_template('landing.html', form=form, data=data, title=_('Welcome to Site')) What should I do to avoid this problem? I appreciate any help. Thanks. A: Use request.args. if request.method == 'POST': ... if 'index' in request.args: ... Also, it is the preferred style to write if statement without parentheses: if request.method == 'POST': if form.validate_on_submit(): data = request.form
