My thesis is on the topic of the effects of the stress of being the only child on a siblings emotions during adolescence. My thesis is on the topic of the effects of the stress of being the only child on a siblings emotions during adolescence. The thesis is intended to examine the siblings emotional development. There is a continuing debate about the effects of childhood abuse on the child's later behaviour. Online Learning Management System in Higher Education. With our study and related discussions on personal relationships of a certain period, the results of our research reveal that the results of our results display the results of the parents' children's relationships with their fathers and mothers and show how the parents' relationship with their children also affect the relationships that exist between each other. To determine this, we asked respondents to report on their relationship with their father and mother and then asked about their relationships with siblings and with other relatives. We did this because it is not generally assumed that a father and mother living together can also be a good example for their children. In the context of the entire family, parents are known to be the most important people for their children. We will get to this, but I am going to talk about the first study and the second study first. With our study and related discussions on
