A: You can not use regex to validate a filename, it will only allow for parts of the name, ie. a number and a letter in a row. You can use a regular expression for a string, though. I suspect that you want to validate the path, so that the user is not allowed to use relative paths. But I don't really understand what you want to achieve. To validate a path, there are multiple ways. In your case, I would assume you need to use Path.GetFullPath(). So you can simply do the following: private static bool PathIsValid(string path) { return System.IO.Path.GetFullPath(path).Contains(".dff" /* the file extension */); } A: The "Match" function in .NET can be used to test whether the string matches a regular expression, like so: if (path.Match("\\.exe$") { // valid file } I would recommend looking into some of the other functions that exist in the System.IO.Path class, including GetFileName, GetDirectoryName, and GetDirectoryPath.
