We're not only looking for a way to add a metric to our existing workspace that we've defined. We're also looking for a way to add a metric to an existing pipeline, and ideally, combine those two tasks into one action. Our workflow consists of a series of Azure Functions that get triggered when certain tables are updated. We then use those functions to iterate over an array of items in a certain table and do some transformations. Finally, we get a generated result table that's read by a Power Query and the results are summarized and presented in a custom dashboard. In order to compare the times in the transformation workflow to the actual times in the Azure Functions, we created a datetime column in the result table, and added a custom metric to our workspace. The problem
