We present a case of fatal duodenal ulcer hemorrhage (DUH) in a 78-year-old man with a history of hypertension, diabetes mellitus and gastric ulcer. His hypertension had been well controlled by ingestion of a diuretic and angiotensin converting enzyme inhibitor, but his diabetes had been poorly controlled by insulin administration. Therefore, we had suspected a risk of DUH due to a lack of medication and the presence of a peptic ulcer. On admission, he developed shock and was treated with tracheal intubation. Due to the lack of available definitive diagnosis, he died. Autopsy findings revealed numerous ulcers, which were located in the lesser curvature of the stomach, the pyloric antrum and duodenal bulb. Several of these ulcers had active bleeding, and a giant hemorrhagic ulcer was observed in the second part of the duodenum. Although upper gastrointestinal bleeding is a major cause of admission to hospital in Japan, most cases of DUH do not require intensive care, and the mortality rate of DUH is very low. However, some reports have indicated that hypertensive patients with diabetes mellitus have a higher mortality rate from DUH than patients without these conditions. We therefore should pay attention to the etiology of DUH in patients with these risk factors.Q: Exclude timezone when looking up data in Google Sheets I'm looking up a list of elements from an AWS instance dump and trying to run the query in Google Sheets. The instance dump has a time stamp that's in UTC but I'm in the US and therefore cannot use the "avg" function on the results. Therefore I tried using the "range" function but this is then looking up the data for every time zone. Is there a way to tell Google Sheets to not include the timezone when calculating the data? I've tried to google it, but couldn't find anything.
