Nos. 5,194,190; 5,187,088; 5,104,435; 4,634,845; 4,160,022; 4,450,834; 4,483,034; 4,592,893; 4,591,438; 4,569,160; 4,548,856; 4,269,818; 4,046,236; 3,923,212; and 3,819,502. U.S. Pat. No. 5,104,435 describes the use of an organic solvent system to provide a less aggressive, more mild hair relaxer treatment. The patent also teaches the use of hydrogen peroxide to simultaneously treat the hair as well as bleach the hair. However, the hydrogen peroxide present on the hair is not present in a pure and soluble form, and is instead in the form of hydroperoxide. Solubilized hydrogen peroxide has been shown to be effective in treating hair, as compared to the use of hydrous peroxide, especially when used in conjunction with the presence of an oxidant. For example, see U.S. Pat. Nos. 5,266,332 and 5,683,469. However, solubilized hydrogen peroxide requires a great amount of the compound to treat hair. Also, upon leaving the hair treated with solubilized hydrogen peroxide in the open air, such as in a typical hair salon, the hair tends to pick up the solubilized hydrogen peroxide and become coated in the compound, thus becoming substantially oxidized. While this may not pose a problem for the hair in the salon, when the hair is later applied to the hair in a home hair treatment procedure, it is desirable to keep the hair clean and unoxidized for the remainder of the treatment procedure. The same problem is also present in hair relaxers using hydrogen peroxide in a conventional solution, in which the hair is pretreated with hydrogen peroxide prior to applying the relaxer solution. Again, the hydrogen peroxide present in the solution is rendered in the form of hydroperoxide, thus requiring a large amount of the compound to provide the desired level of oxidizing the hair. In addition, the hair is also susceptible to picking up the hydrogen peroxide

Narayan's popular novel 'Pather Panchali' (1955) was adapted for the screen with the same name as the title of the film. With this film, Satyajit Ray was India's first superstar, and it also launched the careers of his lead actors, particularly Uttam Kumar and his real-life lover, who also played the same role, Tanuja, in 'Pather P
