Strathmore is the sine qua non of the names of the Members of Parliament of the federal and regional House of Representatives. It has become the lingua franca of the parliamentary system of a country with half the world's population and a population which is only marginally over half of that of the United Kingdom. The origins of this name date back to the mid-eighteenth century when it was a township of a traditional land grant from the Crown to members of the clan of Cameron. The municipal and electoral division of Strathmore was once included in the electorate of the local representative, the Strathmore Vale. At present, the name 'Strathmore' is used in three distinct ways: As the name of an electoral division in the state of Victoria. This was one of several new electoral divisions in the new, four-member South-Eastern

Metropolitan Region in March 1999. As the name of an electoral division in the federal electoral division of Kooyong. The full title of the present Member of Parliament for Strathmore is 'The Honourable [John] Alexander [Jones] MP for Strathmore'.Q: How to add a subview to a table cell? I want to add a UIView to a table cell. I have tried with the code shown below, but it crashes with EXC_BAD_ACCESS when it gets into the viewDidLoad method. I am very new to Xcode and iOS so it is possible that I am doing something silly. What am I doing wrong? What I want to accomplish is to have a "Button" view show up on the right side of each table cell when the user taps it. I looked at some related questions, but they all had a storyboard, and I am not using one. Can you please help?
