
Displayname field missing from registry

Error with purchase of Battlefield 1 and Origin account.

Actions : Find display name missing from registry

19/08/2016 by Richhoney. Hi, I'm currently trying to play Battlefield 1 (I own it) on my second monitor on a standard NVIDIA GeForce GTX 660 graphics card. I've tried doing this: (on my desktop) 1. Click start. 2. Type "cmd" (without quotes) 3. Copy-and-paste the following in the command line. setxkbmap -option ctrl:nocaps -- [Mouse] navigate to C:\Windows\system32\config\ find key.reg and delete it. 4. Reboot and try play again If that doesn't work, go here: click on service and tell them you're having issues. that should fix it. Ask questions in the comments or let me know. All comments welcome and appreciated. Reply > Great, and without this I will see- Manual Site Activation from

Temporary patch: Go to your Origin game library Right-click on the "FIFA 21" game and select "Repair game" Right-click on "FIFA 21" again and select "Uninstall game" Click the "Finish" button "FIFA 21" game will be removed from your library Complete steps 1-4 above Reset the Origin installation Start the "FIFA 21" game. You can now play the game without this error. Reverse Steps 2-4 from the "Repair" process SOLUTION: . Restarted the computer... Run Origin. Entered a key code for Battlefield 1.. It showed me a message saying unable to register this key.. tried again... and still got "DisplayName field missing from registry". SOLUTION: Originally this error was occurring due to a change which was made to the Origin database (error code -11). This bug was fixed and new records were stored in the Origin database (error code -100). Due to this bug, in some Origin regions, new purchase of a discounted product and repeated activation of the product should be avoided as they might not receive the product's display name. However, if the same product is purchased at a regular price, it should work properly. Open Origin and perform the following steps: 1. Open Origin 2. On the right-hand side of the Origin Game Select screen, there is a text bar at the bottom of the screen. 3. Click the "Repair" button at the bottom right of the text bar. 4. Open the Origin Store after the repair process is complete. 5. Go back to the Origin Game Select screen and find the game. 6. Click on the game that needs repair. 7. Check that the "Display name field missing from registry" error is gone. Enable Origin from your account settings. It will ask you to activate for the 1st time then show Activation successful page. @Daan_The If you are using the right joystick, you will get the same thing like when your stick is not calibrated on the game. To fix this problem, follow the instructions listed 570a42141b
