The widget allows you to adjust the location, city, state, season, and air temperature for viewing on the computer. Weather notifications are provided for Amber, for Tropical Storm Hanna, and for Hurricane Danny. Widget description: ... Weather information in Florida and the Florida Keys We all love the clear Florida Keys beaches, soft turquoise waters and strong winds. The weather is almost always pleasant. If it is raining on the other hand, we also love that because it cools the air. The only thing you might get wet is your feet because we often get lots of storms. This widget is going to give you all the weather information in the Florida Keys and where you are located. Most of us love the Florida Keys because of the wildlife. We love to watch the dolphins, sharks, seagulls, and all the other animals that call the Florida Keys their home. Of course we love the weather because it is good for us. The widget will show you where you are, the current weather conditions in the Florida Keys and the wind direction, the wind speed, the hourly forecast for the next 24 hours, and the radar. The widget is being updated every half an hour so you will always have current weather conditions. You can click on the map to zoom in on your location. In the widget description, you can read more information about where you are. Feel free to leave us some feedback and ratings. The information in this widget is available from the Florida Keys Weather Center (and the National Weather Service (You can always count on the day to day information in the weather for the Florida Keys. The weather information in this widget is current as of today's date. The weather forecast for the next 24 hours is provided by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Solidarity 200: Cheering for the Revolution After a day of marching, celebrating and organizing, a small group of people managed to get to the neighborhood where the action at Solidarity 200 started. “Hi guys! Where the f*ck is everybody?” Sébastien, a student with radical ink, was directing our little group to where we should go and where we should stay. “You can take some rests,” he said. “We want to walk some distance and we’re not sure where that is,” I said. “You can take some rest, but you’ll have to stay in the dorms where they’re holding the action,” he said. “We have to get going.” We walked. After a few minutes, Sébastien handed us our security pass and off we went. We arrived at the first action. “Hi! Where is everybody?” we asked a group of people with their hands in the air, which was about 25 people. “No one is here!” they responded, and we walked further. After 15 minutes of walking and organizing with those in the neighborhood, we got to the building where the action started. There were many people inside. “Hey, how’s it going?” I asked. “Do you know where the f*ck everybody is?” “No, I don’t,” I responded. “I’m going to go look for them.” “You’re looking for them?” I asked. “It’s Saturday. You should know where they are.” “I’m looking for them.” After a while, he said, “Are you with anybody?” “Yes,” I said. “Is anybody going to organize us a bit?” “I’m going to talk to some of them,” I said. “Okay,” he said. As I was talking to some of those in the crowd, I realized the majority of those there were students. “So, you’re a student?◆
