Time to address the elephant in the living room: heart failure prevention and patient activation. Heart failure is the most common reason for hospitalization in older adults. Rates of heart failure are rising, and healthcare costs will rise with them. The National Heart Failure Strategy is an important step toward improving the quality of care and outcomes for patients with heart failure. The recent Patient-Centered Primary Care Collaborative data emphasize the importance of enhancing patient activation as a way to improve care and outcomes. In order to achieve better outcomes for heart failure patients, the healthcare system is going to have to address the challenges that face patients with this diagnosis, including medication adherence, living with the self-management burden of illness, and the lack of education about their condition and its treatment options. “I think she has a shot,” he says. “She has a natural ability that most players don’t have. We’re going to find out how the rest of the pieces fit around her.” A natural ability to put and stop doesn’t amount to much without a good supporting cast, or maybe a good supporting cast. Fans who flock to games for the excitement of a game being played, or who watch to see if this coach or that one will win, have very little say in the matter. “You’re not going to win without good players,” Eagan says. “The key is the coaches. A good coach can usually make a good player look better, and a bad coach make a good player look bad. “The character of the team is going to be determined by the character of the people that are on the team, not by the coach.” Wade says she doesn’t mind criticism or comments from opposing fans. She loves the experience, taking in the excitement of the fans and being part of a great story. “All of my coaches were critical of me,” she said. “They could tell it bothered me, but I was so grateful for the chance to play and so in awe of the fans. This is not the kind of game where you go in knowing
