Pomodoro Timer

Good timer app to take advantage of. Because it won't let you mess with the registry, you can easily install it on any of your flash drives and take it with you. It's actually not a bad app to start with, but it needs some work. I recommend starting with the free version and then installing the pro version. 5 out of 5 stars I am not a fan of these timers. However, I do use pomodoro time. Compatible with 7 out of 10 Windows tools 5 out of 5 stars Did not work with RealPlayer Works with WinXP/Vista/Win7 User reviews 0 out of 5 stars Write your review 3 A simpler version of Pomodoro Written by D.B. on 28th Oct 2014 Pomodoro Timer is a simple but effective timer app for Windows. The program has been designed to make it easier to time tasks. There are quite a few different features to improve the user's experience. • User-defined time in minutes (start, break, and end). • Clock type (count down, analog, and digital). • Some days of the week (mon, tues, wed, thurs, fri, sat, sun). • US and UK time. • Option for tasks and breaks to be unlisted. • Option for task and break to repeat after reaching the break duration. • Option to create a countdown timer. • You can set the task completion message. • You can select the time to open the task immediately when you start the timer. • You can set the sound to play when the timer is about to finish. • You can select the task position when the timer automatically closes. • You can give a task the ability to run a task automatically when the timer ends. • Task settings such as priority, start time, notification frequency, etc. • An easy-to-use interface that lets you access the settings right from the main timer window. • Detailed task information displayed during the task. • Detailed task information is also displayed in a pop-up window. • A setting to automatically record the information of each task in a text file. Pomodoro Timer is not a complete timer solution, but it's a nice basic timer solution for Windows. The program displays a welcome screen that

Search form The Revitalization of the Newsroom at NMU The Newsroom is about to get a much-needed renovation. Back in 2006, the Newsroom was built and in that time, the Newsroom has become a prominent, on-campus location for the campus community. From daily meetings to weekly presentations, the Newsroom is the place where ideas are explored, plans are laid out, and gatherings take place. It is where students and staff have opportunities to share their work and learn from one another. With such a large and growing community, the Newsroom was beginning to show signs of wear and tear. This year, we would like to take advantage of the opportunity to celebrate the Newsroom's 10th year of service to the campus, and in the process, the Newsroom's revitalization and future. The Newsroom is scheduled to undergo a renovation this summer, which is a big step toward ensuring that NMU's students, faculty, and staff have a space to gather and meet. The renovation will entail the installation of a kitchen in the area and the development of a classroom at the rear of the area. This renovation will also allow for the relocation of the administrative offices into the space that is currently occupied by the Secretary's and Treasurer's offices. Together with the relocation of the Office of the Executive Vice President and Provost, the renovation will increase the total number of NMU faculty, students, and staff that work
