Download program: \hat{A} « Using Window.location when loading a page I'm doing a bit of a web development project, and I want to use JavaScript to load a page into my browser's tab that will close when they close the window. I use navigator.open in the JavaScript to open the page, but closing the window doesn't close it, so I'm using a combination of window.onunload = function(e) { location.href = "close.html"; } to close the window when they click the "close" link on the page. How would I close it when the window is closed with JavaScript? A: To close the window just remove the window.onunload= function(e) {... line from your code. window.onunload = function(e) { // HERE - Remove the line as it will lead to infinite loop location.href = "close.html"; } "plus_dark_seer_double_mana_combo" { "template" "dark_seer_double_mana_combo" "tier" "1" "" { "1" { "75" "1" } "2" { "100" "1" } } "challenge_ranks" "3" } Q: Conditional filtering by a factor in ggplot2 This has been asked a lot, and I've looked through the related posts, but I can't seem to find anything that works in my example. I'm looking for a way to filter my data by factors for an 3e33713323
