Justin Bieber said he could quit music and become an artist after experiencing more success in the US than he has in his home country. Bieber's fame in Australia has been low for the past couple of years, due to his turbulent relationship with singer Selena Gomez, as well as the fact that he has struggled to find a role in the country. He recently abandoned his dream of being an Aussie Idol contestant, and found that he was not likely to have a breakout year after all, even though he has been touring the country. Speaking at the end of a successful tour of Australia and New Zealand, he said he could quit his music career and make a living by painting or sculpting. "I think I might actually do a painting, and I've been looking at art a lot more," he said. "Like I said, I don't know if that's going to be a thing. I'm definitely more into visual art." He said a move to painting was a more realistic possibility. "I might quit music. If I do that, I think I'll make a living off of painting," he said. "I feel like that's where I'm at now, so why not?" His latest album, Journals, was released in 2012 and became the singer's first album to reach the US top 10.

But that does not guarantee Bieber will have more success in Australia, where he will be
