Controlling the behavior of the fluid droplets on the metal surface is an interesting topic in various applications. With the assistance of theoretical analysis and experimental study, we quantitatively investigated the effects of the surface wettability and droplet shape on the capillary migration and nanofluid dynamics of millimeter-size droplets on a gold surface. We observed that the nanofluid droplets that were inclined at an angle of less than 45° with the surface showed more rapid migration to the center of the droplet. The capillary migration time of the droplet became longer as the droplet surface became more hydrophobic. The experiments also showed that the critical contact angle for the droplet to completely wet the gold surface was $\sim 80^\circ$. Furthermore, the minimum droplet volume required to sustain the droplet on the metal surface after the capillary drainage was $\sim 10 \text{ mm}^3$. Moreover, a certain amount of volume of the droplet should be provided to avoid the droplet from scattering on the surface after the capillary drainage. These results could be useful for tuning the surface wettability of the liquid droplets on the metal surface, and it could be applied to optimize the geometrical performance of the fluidic devices.

Q: How to solve $|A-B|=|A|\sqrt{1-|B|^2}$? I have two sets of points A, B in \mathbb{R}^2 . I need to find the ratio of the volume of the convex hull of A to the volume of the convex hull of B . I already have the iterative formula $x_{i+1} = \frac{x_i^n + x_{i+1}^n}{1+x_{i-1}^n x_i^n}$ And I found the weight function $w(x,y) = \frac{1}{|A|} \frac{1}{\sqrt{1-\left(\frac{|B|}{|A|}\right)^2}}$, $\text{quad } x,y \in A,B$ but still no solution. Could someone help me with this one? 570a42141b
