These levels will be compared to those found in the blood of these same individuals following delivery. The program will also provide a pregnancy serum and plasma to the investigator for use in their laboratory studies. During the second and third trimester of the study, daily samples of blood will be taken for the purpose of monitoring the course of the pregnancy. At least two urine specimens will be taken daily. The blood levels of these factors will be monitored from approximately 8-12 weeks gestation, to delivery, for the mothers and approximately 35 days for the babies. It is anticipated that the course of pregnancy may influence the coagulation factors and factor levels, which will be determined and monitored. The Country-Wide Representative of the German Communist Party (KPD/ML) has considered the current situation in Germany and in the country in general. When visiting the German People's Republic, visitors are usually more interested in tours of the cities than in the countryside. However, some of the towns and villages in the Central Germany are well worth a visit. In his report to the Central Committee, the executive of the KPD/ML has compiled a list of things to see and do in and around Germany. The report has been composed in order to assist visitors in having a better time during their stay in the German state. Here is the report. It's particularly worth doing. More than ever, Germany is a country that has seen dramatic political and social change and social tensions. During the visits to the country, the activity in individual cities and localities, in particular, are worth the attention of visitors. For many years, we have collected experiences in the City-Reports and in The Political Grapevine. In the pages of this report, we highlight only a few places of interest. It is not intended to be a guide to the entire country. Berlin, the German capital. With a population of 3.5 million inhabitants,
