However, petitioner testified that he has not been treated since his back injury occurred. The claims file further includes a C-File dated August 31, 2016, in which petitioner reported that he has pain in his back, which he acknowledges is related to his industrial injury, and he has had similar symptoms since the injury occurred in August 2015. Petitioner indicated that his injury was in his lower back, that it occurred while he was at work, and that he requested a panel evaluation to address his back injury. Petitioner further stated that he was being treated for the problem by a chiropractor and that his symptoms did not improve with chiropractic treatment. Petitioner further reported that he was receiving Social Security disability benefits, but that his disability had been documented since 1997. At the time of the C-File, no visit notes were included in the claims file, although a treatment note of record dated November 14, 2016, indicated that petitioner had a "history of back and knee problems since 2008 with complaints of constant [sic] low back pain." The treatment notes of record do not indicate that any work-related injuries were the cause of petitioner

I can see the site is working properly on localhost and also it is being accessed properly on the live site. However this error is logged on another remote server. When I was logging into that remote server, it was giving the same error, but it was not appearing on localhost or live site. I have checked the security and set it to the level required, which is below the "The account you are trying to access has insufficient privileges to perform the required operation". However I am still getting the same error. What could the problem be and how to solve this? A: There may be a number of reasons to get this error, but I have had it before when I forgot to add a.php file extension to a link to a document on the site. Check that you have a. 3e33713323
