An end-to-end program for converting SVG images to PNG in Android's five scalable formats (LDPI, MDPI, HDPI, XHDPI, XXHDPI). No setup required, besides Java The entire program's wrapped in a single executable.jar file that can be saved anywhere on the disk or copied to a removable storage unit, in order to directly run it on any computer by just calling its process from a Command Prompt dialog. How it works

The syntax is `java -jar SVG-To-Android-PNG.jar "SVG Folder"` and there are a couple of examples provided for DOS/Windows and Unix/Linux. There are some limitations, though: The result file is only in PNG format. No other formats are supported. Moreover, this utility is in beta stage and the software doesn't seem to be in development anymore. But, you can test SVG To Android PNG for yourself if you're looking for a quick method to create PNG files LDPI, MDPI, HDPI and XHDPI format for Android apps from SVG images. As the full force of Israel's Operation Pillar of Defense bombarding Gaza continues, the U.S. may be holding up thousands of dollars in donations from a few sympathetic Israelis and more donors to donate in the coming days. Ari Ben-Menashe, a former Israel National Defense Force officer who now works as a consultant to the U.S. government, has received donations for Gaza relief from people in Israel and the United States, including some potential donors to an upcoming Jewish National Fund (JNF) campaign. "I'm not sure they had the right information yet," he said, but added that their donations are welcome. The U.S. State Department, which looks after the U.S. interests abroad, has no information on the situation or its impact. "The State Department has been aware of concerns over Gaza since the conflict began and continues to monitor the situation," spokesperson Victoria Nuland said. The current online donor form, which generates donations to the "United Jewish Communities Campaign for the Jewish National Fund," lists appeals for "Flood Victims" in Gaza. The form gives donors the option to be anonymous, and can be found on the UJC's website. Donor will be redirected to the online donor page and asked to enter their information. The organization then processes the donor's information
