Left ventricular stiffness and clinical outcomes in chronic heart failure with preserved ejection fraction: an individual patient data meta-analysis. The purpose of the present study was to evaluate the effect of left ventricular (LV) systolic stiffness on clinical outcomes in chronic heart failure (CHF) with preserved ejection fraction (HFpEF). Stiffness is considered a pathophysiological hallmark of CHF. However, the effect of LV stiffness on clinical outcomes in CHF with HFpEF remains unclear. Individual patient data were extracted from all available randomized trials. Clinical outcomes were analyzed using the intention-to-treat principle. A total of 939 patients were included in the final analysis (mean age: 72 ± 10 years; 75% female). The proportion of patients with HFpEF was 58%. Patients were treated with either furosemide-based or non-furosemide-based therapy. There was a linear relationship between LV stiffness (E/E(a)) and New York Heart Association functional class (mean difference: 1.2; 95% confidence interval [CI]: 0.8-1.5), LV systolic dysfunction (mean difference: 3.4; 95% CI: 2.6-4.2), and other clinical outcomes. Similar results were also obtained from individual trials. Subgroup analysis showed that E/E(a) ($\beta = -0.42$; 95% CI: -0.78 to -0.08; $p = 0.017$) was the strongest predictor of clinical outcomes. Left ventricular systolic stiffness was the strongest predictor of clinical outcomes in patients with CHF with HFpEF. The results of the present study demonstrate the importance of early detection of LV systolic stiffness in these patients.

KeyMacro is a set of presets for some of the most used keyboard shortcut macros. However, KeyMacro is not only about shortcuts, but it also includes a comprehensive and easy-to-use dialog to manage your shortcuts. You can create as many shortcuts as you want and assign a key combination for each one of them. The short way of explaining the idea is, when you press a certain key combination, you will be able to trigger a set of actions from which KeyMacro will display a dialog with all the possible actions that can be triggered. Each action will be associated with a shortcut combination that will be assigned to the preset and the preset can be assigned to any application. This way, you can create a set of actions and assign a shortcut combination to each action and that shortcut combination will be assigned to any application. KeyMacro comes with more than 1000 predefined presets that cover most of the keyboard shortcuts you can use. KeyMacro was designed to be used with the keyboard, however, you can also use it with the mouse. By double-clicking any button or action, the actions will become editable in a simple and intuitive way.

INSTALLING AND RUNNING KeyMacro The installation of KeyMacro is very easy, the process is similar to other programs, you will have to unzip the.zip file, and then open the KeyMacro folder to launch the program. Once it is installed and launched, you can follow the steps below to create your presets and add them to the program:

1. Press CTRL+N and select "New preset".
2. Type a name for the preset.
3. Press OK to create the new preset.
4. Press CTRL+N and select "New preset".
5. Type a name for the preset.
6. Press OK to create the new preset.

The preset will be added to the list and you will be able to edit it in the same way as any other action. Add your own action You can also create your own actions by following the same steps. To add an action, simply right-click on a button or on any action in the application and select "Add Action". The new action will appear in the list of existing presets and you can edit it in the same way as any other preset.

RELEVANT INFORMATION Technical details The name of the action is the combination of the button or 1d6a3396d6
