This is not just a game in which you need to survive, but a real survival guide that reveals all the features of our planet. The developers managed to show in detail not only the size, but also the location of our planet on the globe: what are the temperatures, humidity, winds, etc. Life on this planet, in general, is subject to certain laws. For example, if a strong wind constantly blows in any area of the planet, this can lead to dry periods on the continent and tede. So when creating your storylines, think over and calculate everything to the smallest detail! The creators promise to make a free (you can perform all the actions as a bonus) and shareware (without the ability to download the trading network and others) version, which will allow you to play not only on standard physical computers, but also on smartphones. They promise to provide graphics in the new year, but for now the project is in beta testing, so in addition to developing a beta version, the creators have a few more years to develop and improve the game.
