Speaking Clock

The Clock package is a timekeeper and a clock. Its a tool for you to focus on important things and keep track of time. Say in a meeting, or a conference. Or even while driving through town to arrive at your destination on time. When you are home, or have a meeting, or when you are "in the zone" - when you want to concentrate on what is essential - the Clock is a soothing and friendly companion to help you accomplish your goals. Clock can track the current date and time, and display it to you in simple to read pages. When you close the software, it saves any changes you made for the next time you use the clock. Simply by using the time from an external device, Clock can tell the time very precisely. The clock package is simple to use. You type the time you want to record, then you press the record button to start timing. Unlike other timekeepers, this clock is not dependent on the internet. Its time is set from a local hard drive or from any other external source. In the Clock package, the minimum time you can record is 1 day. This is what the recording button is for. You can decide for yourself if you want to record the time for 1 day, 7 days, 30 days, a year, or any other time. At any time during the year, you can optionally use a Time Changer to scroll through all of the recorded times. Clock has a very large degree of precision. You can set the time to within 1 millisecond. As a result, it should be very easy for you to keep track of the time. Clock includes a Time Changer option, which lets you scroll through all of the times you have recorded. With Time Changer, you can even scroll through the current time up to a year in the future. Note: Use the "Start Recording" button to start time. When you press the "End Recording" button, the time is automatically saved and shown. Use the "Stop Recording" button to stop time. If you run out of time, just press the "Start Recording" button again and the time will be recorded. Clock can be set to a specific alarm time or simply any time you decide. If you use the Time Changer option, you can easily get a timeslot that works for your needs. Clock is designed to display a week's worth of times for the months of February and March.
