A Tennessee man was arrested after allegedly hiding inside an egg with a handgun, NBC News reports. Police reportedly arrived at the home of Joseph McCluskey, 35, on Thursday after being alerted by a neighbor who reported hearing gunshots. They found the egg containing the gun, which was later removed and "confirmed to be loaded," according to a police statement. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's National Wild Turkey Federation, which tracks the population of the federally protected birds, issued a warning Thursday that people should not disturb wild turkeys because the birds are extremely protective and dangerous. The Nashville Tennessean reported. "Our officers have said this before, but this is a reminder: do not handle turkeys, especially if you find them on the ground." Brent Cox, the federation's wildlife education coordinator, said in a statement. "Do not try to wake them up." McCluskey was charged with reckless endangerment, NBC News reported. need to find support elsewhere in the EU to stop the UK from leaving the EU. A referendum on Brexit would be considered a problem to the EU, as it would be seen as a way of forcing an exit and it might lead to a further destabilization of the EU, leading to a possible split into two. The UK, however, had made several suggestions as to what could be done to avoid a Brexit, but none of them were accepted.
