Mar 17, 2009. Can you help me to install M20106?Q: DRF orm.model is deprecated? In django I have to use django-rest-framework, It should be DRF orm.model. This is required in django rest-framework. For example this is the code line where it was used from rest_framework import routers, serializers, viewsets class ArticleViewSet(viewsets.ModelViewSet): queryset = Article.objects.all() serializer_class = ArticleSerializer lookup_field = 'pk' ordering_fields = ['-pub_date'] permission_classes = (permissions.IsAuthenticated,) filter_fields = ['pk'] In the same way I need to write this in django rest framework because it is required. Where the line is used class AuthorUserRestSerializer(serializers.ModelSerializer): class Meta: model = AuthorUser fields = '__all__' A: In this context, it seems that the db backend is not used. You can use Django REST Framework's ModelViewSet and APIView instead (The documentation explains how to create different views from the base class without using an instance, which is good for testing purposes. For your specific example, I'd recommend using the Django REST Framework's UserPkRelatedField, which should serialize your object as its parent model, just by providing a model field. Intraspecific relationships among Triturus cristatus from different Spanish localities. Frogs of the genus Triturus are the only European salamanders with oviparous females. Their population dynamics is also influenced by the larvae of other insect species. We analyse phenotypic differences and intraspecific relationships among Triturus cristatus samples from 5 Spanish localities and discuss their implications in strategies for the conservation of these salamanders. We found significant differences among these populations based on morphological measurements, colorimetric analyses and size-related traits. The greatest phenotypic divergence
