Google Chrome has some built-in settings that allow you to stop other websites from tracking you online. These settings are also a good way to disable cookies and other tracking features. There are also some tools that help you see what websites you have visited and delete them. By default, Google Chrome has some tracking protection, but there are other ways to get rid of the Google Analytics that most websites use. It is suggested you first disable cookies to prevent tracking. You can do this easily in Google Chrome. Here are the steps to disable cookies in Google Chrome: Steps to disable cookies in Google Chrome: Open the Google Chrome browser and click the three horizontal lines icon at the top right of the browser window. Next, click on Settings and click on the "Show advanced settings" link. Next, scroll down to find the "Privacy" section and click on it. Now, click on "Settings" under the Privacy section and select the option "Content settings" under the Privacy section. You should now see a list of web sites. The last item is the "Always block" box. Uncheck the box, then click on "OK" and then "Done". Close the Google Chrome browser and restart it. If the problem persists, please check to see if there is any program you have recently installed that is causing the problem. Steps to disable tracking in Google Chrome: Open the Google Chrome browser and click on the three horizontal lines icon at the top right of the browser window. Next, click on Settings and click on the "Show advanced settings" link. Next, scroll down to
