GitHub does not allow you to download a file with out a valid user agent. The "user agent" is the words in the head of a web browser. It is actually a tracking code that web browsers often add to HTTP requests. GitHub uses it to track where its users are from and what browser they are using. You need to add a user agent to the headers of the request. Look for User Agent in the "Headers" section of the "Settings" panel. Then you can fetch the needed files and have them downloaded. However, you still need to find some way to download them. You could use curl to download the files. Replace the http request in your original code with this: curl -o fix1497bagz501.zip -L " --header 'User-Agent: Mozilla/5.0 (Windows NT 10.0; W 55cdc1ed1c
