My Secrets Vault

My Secrets Vault is a good application to store things like Software Information, Credit Card Information, or Valuables, and only show the information to you. The application is password protected, so only you can access your data. However, the application also has a one-time use code generator for you to use. My Secrets Vault is a good application for people who have to manage a lot of Information, or who simply want to keep track of their own User ID and Password information. Privacy Settings: If you are concerned about privacy, My Secrets Vault can be configured to not show the application icon, or you can choose not to show the information on your desktop. My Secrets Vault has some security settings, but due to the default settings, you can change the settings to be more secure. Please Note: My Secrets Vault is an advance application, and requires you to be somewhat familiar with the use of a text editor.

However, we do provide a tutorial that walks you through the application and the steps to take to generate a one-time use code.

You can choose between two different password modes:

Option 1 There is no password required to open the application. You can simply select "Open my vault" and all of your password information will be displayed to you. Once you select "Open my vault", a dialog box will be displayed. You can see your old passwords, and you can select a new password from the drop-down menu. You can then click on the "Save to vault" button to have your new password added to your database. Option 2 If you select the second option, you will be prompted to input a password. This password will be used to protect your data. The password may be kept in a text file on your computer in plain text. If the file has a.txt extension it can be opened by Microsoft Notepad. If you are going to use the option

2, you will have to know how to save a file on your computer.

Instructions on how to open your application, and how to select a new password for your data, are located in the tutorial. Elements of The Key Macro application allows you to protect and secure your computer by providing password protection for your registry keys and files.

By entering a single password, you can protect anything from your virus definitions, to your internet browsers, to anything you have placed in your registry. It also protects these items from other applications and from software utilities such as "Speed Up", "Defrag" and "Malwarebytes". So if you are tired of typing the same passwords over and over again, or would like to protect your precious data, this is the application for you. This version provides support for all current Microsoft operating systems.

Select a feature: 1. Selecting a single registry key or multiple registry keys 2. Setting a program for your custom password 3. Selecting a file for your custom password

NOTE: After you have selected a feature, you cannot go back to the list of features. Please refer to the screen shots or videos if you need assistance. The application is available for Microsoft Windows 2000 and higher. Please check out my other applications which I maintain for your pleasure. My Secrets Vault is a handy and

Good news. This may change things by making more software like Google Earth available, perhaps creating the kinds of things that might have been produced by Viewmaster or Google's other predecessors. ~~~ roc The issue isn't a lack of software, it's that the software being written today is so top-down and context-specific. That's not going to change as the author argues. That said, I'd like to know more about the Windows version of this tool. Google's current efforts on desktop are all very 'web-oriented' and don't seem to contain any real commitment to real-time, interactive GIS stuff. As an example, when I'm walking in the woods and see a building in satellite view, it's relatively easy to figure out how to get to it. There's an obvious road, and you can see the buildings in the satellite view at the top.

So I can, say, teleport to the top of the building.

But in Google Earth, you only see the
view as you zoom in.
There's no top-down, real-time view. And this is in a project where I'm working on making it easy to build a map-based application that runs on Windows. ~~~ makecheck The web version of the app is really a demonstration of the potential. If you just want to "get to" the building, just use the Maps browser
