===== Forget of all other similar programs! With this tool you can scrape any App Store. You can gather data about more than 500k apps, and you can make dumps to CSV or JSON files. An application can be e.g. an app from the game category, or a PTC app, or an app by the developer. It is not limited to the amount of data. You can make a bundle with category, or with one or multiple apps. There is a built in database available, so you can easily export the data to CSV. With a web interface, you can access to the database or to the app store. It is included in the MacOS appStore SDK. Another use case of this tool is to test the program when you've problems with the AppStore. It will make the AppStore behave normally when it's failing. Why not asking for you to install the software? 1. It's free, and open-source. 2. You can generate a database from the scraping with a one-time database snapshot, without having a network connection. 3. You can export the database to a CSV file, without having to run the scraper again.
