For Windows. team fortress 2 A: I suggest you use sed to do this, e.g.: cat foobar.txt | sed's/\(.*\)s|\(.*\)/\1\2/g' > foobars Here, the following three lines are replaced: \(.*)s|\(.*\)/\1\2 \(.*)s|\(.*\)/\1\2 \(.*)s|\(.*\)/\1\2 The search pattern is captured in groups. The first group is \(.*)\), which is matched against any text that is not just white-space. The second group is \(.*\), which is matched against any text that is not just white-space. The third group is \(.*)\), which is matched against any text that is not just white-space. The replacement string is what you want. The first two substrings, \1 and \2, are replaced with whatever is matched by the first two groups. Then, the third substring, \2, is replaced with whatever is matched by the third group. You can see what sed is doing in action by listing your original input and file contents: $ cat foobar.txt some text that is not just white-space some more text that is not just white-space some more text that is not just white-space $ cat foobars some text that is not just white-space some more text that is not just white-space some more text that is not just white-space You can see that the output is the same as the input, so this should work as you expect. 40 U.S.C. § 704, "relates to determining the jurisdiction of the administrative law judge over [

I want to extract and analyse the data in each text file using in C#. I have a List of files in the directory from which I want to extract and analyse the data.

static void
Main(string[] args) { string folderPath = @"D:\Data"; List fileNames = new List(); foreach (var file in Directory.GetFiles(folderPath))

---

{ fileNameNames.Add(file); } //Iterate through the files foreach (var fileName in fileNameNames) { //Extract Data in each file } } A: The key part of your question is how to "extract the data", but i assume you mean you want to parse the text for keywords, or work with different sections of the same file. If that's the case, I suggest you read and parse the file using a lower-level API like StreamReader to read the file. Each word or phrase can be read as a string, and tokens that you care about can be written to a particular enumerator. A simple example would be to use the StringReader and get each line: foreach (var line in File.ReadLines(filePath)) { // Read the lines here } The other more interesting way, if you need to work with specific parts of the file, is to use the FileStream to access the data directly. int startIndex = 0; int endIndex = 0; int count = 0; var text = File.ReadAllText(path); while
