of the Invention The present invention relates to a magnetic disk apparatus, and particularly, to a magnetic disk apparatus equipped with a system for adjusting the head gap of a magnetic head. 2. Description of the Prior Art In a magnetic disk apparatus, a magnetic head performs magnetic reading and writing. The positional relation between the magnetic head and a surface of a magnetic disk is adjusted by a fine control of the gap between the magnetic head and the magnetic disk to prevent the magnetic head and the magnetic disk from being damaged. The fine gap control is carried out by an adjuster of a magnetic head drive mechanism. A method of adjusting the fine gap adjustment performed by a conventional adjuster is described in, for example, the publications of Japanese Patent Laying-Open No. 8-195557, U.S. Pat. No. 5,747,819 (corresponding to Japanese Patent Laying-Open No. 10-44343) and U.S. Pat. No. 5,712,742. The document of Japanese Patent Laying-Open No. 8-195557 discloses an adjuster provided with two sensors adapted to detect the gap. The adjuster permits the gap to be changed by displacing the magnetic head with a first fine amount based on the output of the first sensor and permits the gap to be changed by displacing the magnetic head with a second fine amount based on the output of the second sensor.

The document of U.S. Pat. No. 5,712,742 discloses an adjuster provided with three sensors adapted to detect the gap. The adjuster permits the gap to be changed by displacing the magnetic head with a first fine amount based on the output of the first sensor, permits the gap to be changed by displacing the magnetic head with a second fine amount based on the output of the second sensor and permits the gap to be changed by displacing the magnetic head with a third fine amount based on the output of the third sensor. The document of U.S. Pat. No. 5,747,819 discloses

Home-Based Therapy for Chronic Low Back Pain: A Review of the Literature. Low back pain is a leading cause of disability and a common reason for physician visits. Chronic low back pain (cLBP) carries a substantial burden to patient, medical care, and public health. Treatment options for cLBP have been discussed in the literature, but less than a third of cLBP patients receive any form of treatment. A primary barrier to treatment is the low rate of referral to providers and receipt of guidelines-based interventions, with one study showing that only about 10-30% of cLBP patients are referred to a provider. At the time of referral, treatment goals are infrequently discussed, leading to sub-optimal care. Increased utilization of complementary and integrative approaches may improve outcomes for cLBP patients.

The purpose of this review was to synthesize the literature on home-based therapy for cLBP. This review included 19 studies that evaluated home-based therapy (HBT), cLBP outcomes, or both. Fourteen of 19 studies found positive trends in cLBP outcomes as a result of HBT. Of those studies that evaluated patient satisfaction, most were positive.

Future research should focus on determining which interventions are most effective in improving cLBP outcomes.
