Download.Q: Azure App Service only listing the following URL:ms.dev.azure.com I have recently switched over a Codefresh project that previously generated single ARM packages (built using a packer image) to a new Azure App Service. The app service is now generating a Web App, since it's running App Service with CORS enabled. However, all of the previous project variables are not available in the Azure Web App explorer, so this means I can't deploy new versions to the Web App. Digging around the MSDN documentation (I've discovered that the only variables available seem to be AppName, AppSetting and SiteName. Is there anything that I can add to the package.json for the project to be scoped to a specific URL of Azure (e.g ms.dev.azure.com)? FYI: I am accessing Azure through its GitLab repository. A: Ok, so I have managed to achieve a decent workaround. My approach is to make a build that will pull the source code from Azure Code-Repository. This code is in the form of a serverless file (since this is a lambda function). The build will then get the variables from the source code that is generated by Code-Repository. My issue with this is that it's not a clean solution. Donald Trump warned that the UK will be "punished" if Boris Johnson and his cabinet press ahead with a no-deal Brexit. Mr Trump, who is due to meet the prime minister in Washington this week, tweeted his "disappointment" at the way Mr Johnson's Brexit
