Especially for folders. Is there an alternative way to move files that are stored in desktop icons to the trash? A: You can create a service (system file) that will run on boot. mkdir /Applications/ sudo defaults write com.apple.desktoputils \ TrashApplication::ServicePath /Applications/ This will create a /Applications/com.apple.trash.plist. sudo defaults write com.apple.desktoputils \ TrashApplication::Icon 'trash:cancel' Save and then reboot. There will be no program icon to click, the behavior will be similar to emptying out the trash from the Finder icon. Erythrocyte motion in sickle-cell disease is characterized by an increase in the proportion of blood-transported red cells (TRBC), and an increase in the mean velocity of blood in small vessels. Approximately 35% of the total TRBC population in the circulation is responsible for these changes in velocity. Oxygen delivery to tissues is relatively improved in patients with limited changes in hemoglobin concentration. The proposed role of hydrogen-oxygen exchange in TRBC is suggestive of a role for superoxide radicals in the initiation of sickling and potentiation of sickle-induced vasoocclusion in the microvasculature. The increased hemoglobin concentration in patients with avascular areas of tissue (SAH) in the polycythemia vera variant is thought to be the result of an increased in the number of TRBC, which may have a protective role for blood in areas where blood flow is compromised. The phenomenon of somatic mosaicism in sickle-cell disease is a point of interest because of the influence of modifier genes. The effect of modifier genes in patients with sickle-cell disease is discussed in relation to
