Individuals who are substantially disabled by mental illness (people with a psychiatric disability) often encounter difficulty in acquiring housing. This is both a human rights issue (all people have the right to adequate housing) and an economic issue (individuals with psychiatric disabilities are expensive to maintain). The National Institute of Mental Health sponsored a randomized controlled trial to test the effectiveness of an Individual Placement and Support (IPS) program. It was a five-year study that delivered housing to participants on a highly supported basis and aimed to reduce the
