"FIFA's game engine is the best in the world and it already gives players the best visuals in the industry," said Albert Stempin, Senior VFX Supervisor at EA Sports. "By implementing the innovative hyper-visualizations seen in the real-world moves of FIFA superstars, we were able to create the most immersive game experience to date." FIFA 22 introduces additional visual effects beyond match enhancements, including new camera perspectives and player movement. A new game engine has been developed to provide greater realism in football video games, and the game features "move" and "crouch" animations for attacking players. "After a decade of staying true to the beautiful game, FIFA has never looked or played better," said Raphael Ehrenberg, Senior Creative Director at EA Sports. "HyperMotion Technology enhances the realism of these real-world player movements and the ability for the players to feel their movements with greater accuracy through the next-generation animation engine." More FIFA Features Include: The new "In-Game Engine" is a new game engine developed specifically for FIFA that leverages technology available on a wide range of next-generation console platforms. The new engine supports superior physics and animation, along with a new emphasis on fluid gameplay. The new engine also provides three times more artificial intelligence performance and is designed to ensure players' actions are more in line with real-life situations and behavior. For an in-depth explanation of the new in-game engine, visit the FIFA 22 Gameplay Video. Players will enjoy new features such as an all-new "Scoring Animation," which updates the classic animations with more realistic punches and spins. The animations are also more detailed, and more consistent with player presence and mass. The player and ball physics have been reworked, and the impact of the ball on the player's body has also been improved. FIFA 22 provides more realistic on-field moves, with the famous "squirrel run" animations including new nuanced movements, spins and turns. This process included new animations for the tackle mechanic, more subtle controls of the ball, and new animations for other post-tackle actions. FIFA 22 introduces a new AI intelligence system that enables improved behavior and positioning for the defensive players, in addition to the new AI offensive strategy. FIFA 22 delivers advanced goal keeper AI
