“I never set out to create a game that would give players the same feel as real football, but rather to craft a game that would react to players’ movements exactly as real players would in the real game,” said Peter Moore, Vice President of Marketing at EA SPORTS. “I am immensely proud of the work that the team has done to unlock our full potential as a sports game, and is the foundation on which we continue to build with FIFA in the future. I’m really looking forward to seeing what people think about the new game when it launches on September 29th.” FIFA 22 will launch worldwide on September 29th (PDT), and is available on PlayStation®4 system, Xbox One, Xbox 360®, PC, PlayStation®3 system, Nintendo Switch, Wii U and mobile. • FIFA Ultimate Team FIFA Ultimate Team is back and better than ever in FIFA 22. A new feature dubbed “Trial & Error” allows players to skip level-ups and learn the ins and outs of the game through fun and exciting gameplay. Experience the great characters of the FIFA Ultimate Team
