A lot of people are asking me how to add a shadow to their. Archbishop Anglano Gagelupe, spiritual leader of the Catholic Church in Peru, is calling for the end of Peru's "Convenio por la Integración". In a written message to the country's bishops and other Catholic Church, the government of "institutionalizing discrimination" against the country's Tired minority. The "Convenio por la Integración" was a legislative agreement in 1991 between the Catholic Church, the government of Peru, and the Indigeneous groups of Peru. The then-Archbishop was among the agreement's signatories. According to the Pontifical Council for Justice and Peace, the agreement was part of a "process of full integration of the Tawantinsuyo" or Inca people into Peru's society, including the Catholic Church. Along with other clauses, the "Convenio" forbids the ownership of property by the indigenous minorities, and mandates them to pay taxes on that property. Supporters of the agreement argue that the Catholic Church played a major role in this process, by helping the indigenous people gain ownership of the land they lived on. In the message, Archbishop Gagelupe claimed that the agreement is in "stark contrast" with several human rights conventions, including the United Nations' declaration on indigenous rights. "The process of the integration of these Peoples into a single political, social, and economic formation was not pursued with full respect for the historical, cultural, ancestral, and spiritual patrimony of the Indians," the archbishop wrote. "This process has also not been accompanied by full respect for the spiritual, cultural and ancestral integrity of their communities." That respect is vital for any country, in the Archbishop's view. "Patrimony," in the form of traditions, customs, beliefs and values from one generation to the next," explained the Archbi
