11, 2011 Greetings from the Lone Star State... Hello everyone! This is my first post here on Wild Violet Crafts and I just wanted to say that I love this site. I've started making a few things from Bunny Bunches and I love it! Hi Kathy - thanks for your comment. You're right, it is a little difficult to see at first, but then you see all the flowers on the pink side. I didn't know about the bee screen until I started making these and it sure makes it easier to see how to make it. I like the dimensions of this hat, except you've included the mohair - which doesn't work with the stiffer ring of yours, so I won't be sharing a tutorial for this one! Great designs...Q: How to add database

table with a column Can anyone please tell how to add database table using java hibernate? I have a table like:

CREATE TABLE `domains` ( `id` int(11) NOT NULL, `domain` text NOT NULL, PRIMARY KEY (`id`) )

this is how it looks like in phpmyadmin: enter image description here what i want is: enter image description here A: It would be as simple as reading the table definition from a file, using something like this:

import org.hibernate.cfg.Configuration;
Configuration cfg = new Configuration();
cfg.configure("properties/hibernate.hbm.xml");
DataSource dataSource = cfg.dataSource(); CreationService creationService = new

```
DefaultCreationService(); SessionFactory sessionFactory =
cfg.buildSessionFactory(dataSource);
sessionFactory.openSession(); you might need to execute this in some init()
methods
```
