The present invention relates to a knitting machine. In particular, the present invention relates to a knitting machine for producing a tubular knitted fabric such as a towelling tubular knitted fabric, a garment knitting tubular knitted fabric, a sheet knitting tubular knitted fabric. In more detail, the present invention relates to a machine for the production of a tubular knitted fabric, comprising a knitting needle for knitting the tubular knitted fabric and an actuating unit connected to the knitting needle, for moving the knitting needle forwards and backwards and to the right and to the left along a straight path, for knitting an upper thread of tubular knitted fabric and a lower thread of tubular knitted fabric forming the tubular knitted fabric, the actuating unit comprising a drive coupled to the knitting needle, a first motor for driving the knitting needle forwards and backwards, and a second motor for driving the knitting needle to the right and to the left along a straight path and an actuation mechanism coupled to the first motor and to the second motor, for actuating a rotation of the first motor and the second motor for the knitting needle forwards and backwards and to the right and to the left. The prior art discloses knitting machines, in particular for the production of tubular knitted fabrics. More in particular, the prior art discloses knitting machines equipped with a motor for driving the knitting needles forwards and backwards and to the right and to the left along a straight path, the motor being actuated by an actuation mechanism. Furthermore, the prior art discloses actuation mechanisms that are designed to control the action of the motor associated with a knitting needle. However, the knitting needles are moved to the right and to the left in a curved path in which the knitting needle is rotated about the actuation mechanism. This causes the actuation of the motor necessary for actuating the rotation of the knitting needle for the knitting of a tubular knitted fabric to bring the knitting needle into the curved path. In more detail, in the actuation of the prior art actuation mechanism, the rotation of the motor is transmitted to the knitting needle by an eccentric shaft, one of the ends of which is engaged with an actuation ball arranged inside the knitting needle. The rotation of the motor causes the rotation of the eccentric shaft, the rotation of the eccentric shaft being transmitted to the actuation ball, which rotates in a region of the knitting needle which is opposite to the region where the thread
