“There is an incredible tension and drama to football,” said Oliver Bierhoff, FIFA executive producer. “It’s about a sport that’s played at the highest level in a lot of different ways, and we’ve seen our players move and react to the ball in a very wide variety of on-pitch scenarios. Now we’re using the most sophisticated data possible to capture and represent the most natural way they play the game. “In terms of game flow and dynamics, it’s a really significant tech advance that is sure to have a big impact on the FIFA experience,” Bierhoff said. “We’re trying to create a game that will help football transcend the boundaries of the screen and live on in a stadium.
