The free version of this software is definitely capable of fixing your hard drives data, but this isnt enough for our Digital Recovered data recovery needs. If your USB drive is not working, and you cant believe what happened to it, this is a piece of cake! Its similar to Recuva, but it is not a paid software. However, you can recover the data up to 1GB for free. Besides, it provides a parallel file recovery option as well. Due to its simplicity, this tool is a good choice to recover lost data. The free version of this software is capable of fixing your hard drives data, but this isnt enough for our Digital Recovered data recovery needs. If your USB drive is not working, and you cant believe what happened to it, this is a piece of cake! CardRecovery also allows you to preview the recovered files. If you need to recover a single file or a subset of files from multiple storage devices or drives, use the following steps. Steps 1-4 shows how to recover data from a flash drive/thumb drive: Step 2: Click on "React" to initiate the recovery. You will see information about the storage media in Step 2. In Step 3, click on "Open" to see the file list you selected in Step 1. Click on any file name to preview it in Step 4. Click on "Open" to recover that file. Repeat the Step 2-4 for the remaining files. You can save the recovery progress to an XML file if you like. CardRecovery can also be configured to automatically save the recovery process as a video. The free version of Stellar Data Recovery has quite a few data recovery tools. You can recover all files from all storage devices from both internal storage drives and external drives (including SD cards, USB and CD/DVD), along with SMB, FTP, and FTPES, and even file images. Its really quite comprehensive, and with a starting range of 50MB, you can recover quite a bit of data.
