first, we will need to look at the motherboard's internal battery. there is a tiny battery with the motherboard, this one doesn't make any difference in bios. in case of hp, there is a way to reset hp bios password. it is reset by using a password to access the bios by pressing f1, f2, f10

or a combination of those. the bios is the place where you can change the configuration settings. if you want to reset the bios, you need to use a password. you can only reset the bios on hp branded motherboards. this is generally the easiest way to reset the bios password. you need to have the bios utility connected to the motherboard. if the bios utility is not connected or it is not recognized as a device, then there is no way to reset the bios password. the following image shows the battery you need to remove from the motherboard. the battery is a coin-shaped battery and is used to power the bios. if the battery is removed, the bios cannot be accessed because there is no power source. remove the battery and then power up the computer, enter the bios again. you will then be able to access the bios. the bios password is changed to default by entering the bios, the bios is the place where you can change the configuration settings. once the bios is set to default, you can remove the battery from the motherboard. if you are still unable to access the bios and you get a weird error message during boot up, you will need to go to load bios defaults in bios and save the changes to fix them. once you enter the bios, you can see a screen like the one below. at the bottom of the screen, you should see the cmos password. all you need to do is enter the password when prompted. it will then set the bios to default. 5ec8ef588b
